

Why Did I choose an HBCU to further my education

The reason I am attending North Carolina A&T State University is because I have the opportunity to gain more knowledge in Kinesiology/Sports Medicine and I will be a legacy student. I know by going to college it will prepare me for the future, build new relationships and increase my chances for employment. A college education is critical to my success in today's workforce but an HBCU education gives me more insight on culture and a community that supports my education.

College will help me prepare for the future by teaching me practical life skills. The time management skills, meeting deadlines with assignments for each class and daily living skills. College coursework often has complex concepts, which helps me develop strong critical thinking abilities that I can apply in my career and everyday life. I will build all types of new relationships at North Carolina A&T State University, like establishing a connection with my academic advisor and professors and building friendships that will last a lifetime. Once classes begin I will be surrounded by and engaging with peers through group work and class discussions.

Earning a college degree from North Carolina A&T State University will improve my chances of employment, better paying career and can lead to greater happiness and stability in life. A college education will be an investment into the future of my family and Aggie Pride will continue to live on.
